[From the S. F. Bulletin, March 11.]
Can the Union of the States be Restored?

Under this head the Richmond Dispatch of February 7th, has an article on Vallandigham's recent speech, concluding as follows:
"Mr. Vallandigham makes a great mistake in supposing this to be a civil war. It is not a civil war. It is a sectional war. It is a war between two people who are as distinct as the Russians and the Danes, or the Saxons and the Dutch.
Nor do we speak the same language. [?] The language of the South is the English language. The language of the North is English, Dutch, German, Spanish—a compound, in a word, of every known language and dialect in the world. The population of the South is homogeneous. That of the North is more heterogeneous than that of the Austrian Empire. The great wonder is, not that the two sections have fallen asunder at last, but that they held together so long. It would be
